

Board opportunity (voluntary) Community legal services and domestic and family violence services

Justice Support Centre, serving South West Sydney since 1986, is a community organisation that provides free services to the community. We support people in South West Sydney with legal issues, as well as women and children affected by domestic and family violence in South West Sydney, City of Sydney, Inner West and Waverley.

In late 2022 we rebranded, changing our name from South West Sydney Legal Centre.

Our purposes are to provide equitable and accessible legal services to our community and to empower women and children to break the cycle of domestic and family violence. We employ 70-75 people and our annual revenue is approaching $10 million.

Last year's Annual Report and our strategic plan provide a snapshot of our work.

There is one vacancy on the Management Committee ("board") of our Incorporated Association.

We are seeking a volunteer board member who has extensive skills and experience in Finance, and strategic leadership experience in preferably both, but at least one of these areas:

- Finance
- Fundraising and philanthropy

In addition, your expression of interest would be highly regarded if you also have skills or experience in any of these areas:

- Community legal services
- Domestic and family violence services
- Technology (technical; and risk and compliance)

Our board members must have a strong commitment to social justice. Applicants with board experience or AICD board training or similar, will also be highly regarded.

Meetings are generally held via Zoom after 5.30pm, 6-8 times per year. Meetings may also be held in person at our Bankstown office. Board members may also be asked to join our Finance and Risk Committee.
