

Staying Home Leaving Violence service

Liverpool, Fairfield, Canterbury-Bankstown and Burwood

Who is this service for?

The Staying Home Leaving Violence Service assists women supports women who have left an abusive relationship, and their children.

This service is available to women (and their children) who:

- live in Liverpool, Fairfield, Canterbury-Bankstown or Burwood local government areas. See the full list of suburbs in our catchment area on page 2 of this info sheet.
- have decided to separate from a violent partner.

Trans women, sistersgirls and non-binary people are all eligible for this service.

How can this service support clients?

The service supports women and their children who have experienced or continue to experience domestic violence to remain safely in their home or a home of their choice, without the violent person.

Our caseworkers provide support and assistance with legal matters and help make your home safe for you and your children. We will assist you to access the services you need to move forward with your life.

This service does not provide legal advice or legal assistance. If you need legal advice, we can refer you to a solicitor for free legal support.

We can support you with:

- identifying your needs and goals
- safety planning for you and your children
- doing a safety audit of your home
- supporting you through the court processes for family law matters, criminal matters and domestic violence matters
- information and referral to services you need, such as counselling, support groups, victims support services
- long-term, needs-based case management.

Our services are free and confidential. We are here to support you in a non-judgmental environment.

Who operates this service?

This service is operated by specialist domestic and family violence workers at Justice Support Centre, which delivers a range of legal and family and domestic violence services in South West Sydney, Sydney CBD, Inner West and Eastern Suburbs.

The service is funded by the NSW Department of Communities and Justice.
